

Literary Devices

Literary Device: _____

Example: (page __) _____

Literary Device: _____

Example: (page __) _____

Find examples of literary devices in your book.

These can include similes, metaphors, personification, onomatopoeia, foreshadowing, flashback, flash forward, alliteration, or dramatic irony. Use your binder if you need help recalling any of these.

REQUIRED!

Title: _____

Author: _____

By _____

On this page, write the book's title, the author, and your name.
Be sure your title and author are spelled and capitalized correctly.
You can include a drawing here if you wish.

REQUIRED!

Summary:

On this page, write a summary of the book.

You might need two of these pages if your book was a long one.
But remember: it's a summary, not an entire retelling of the book.

REQUIRED!

Setting

Place: _____

Time: _____

Remember, setting describes two things: time and place.

Where does this story take place, and during what approximate time period? You should also provide evidence regarding the setting, such as, "We know this takes place during the Revolutionary War because Joseph is trying to sneak secret messages to General Washington."

Three Things
You Should Know About

REQUIRED

On this page, write about the main character. What you choose to focus upon is up to you. For example, "Bill is a true friend because..." or "Rachel was very brave because..." or "Benjamin is a lot like me because..." or "If Marian were alive today, she would be surprised to discover that _____ because..."

Reality vs. Fiction

This book was Historical Fiction.

Although the main character and some events were created by the author, some things in this book really happened.

Below are three things from this book that are historically accurate:

Locate people, places, events, and details in your book that were really a part of history. You may need a parent to help you do this, although you can also use the Internet, dictionaries, encyclopedias and history books to help you.

Glossary

Choose four new words from your book that are somehow related to the historical period in which your story takes place. If necessary, the words could even name real people or places that played an important part in your book.

Conflicts

Conflict Type: _____

Details: _____

Conflict Type: _____

Details: _____

We learned a lot about conflicts in The Lion, the Witch and the Wardrobe. We are, in fact, experts on this subject! You need to select just two types of conflict you read about, and then provide the reader with details.

REQUIRED!

My Favorite Scene

This illustration shows _____

What was your favorite scene? Did it involve action or emotion? Who was there, what was the specific setting? To make your picture authentic (true to the time period) you may need to look at some history books to see how people at that time dressed, how they lived, etc.